

She almost didn't believe what she was seeing. The mist had come up from the

She blinked. It was still there. Not the vivid colours of a rainbow —

She had heard that moonbows existed — that the moon could do what

She had to look a little to the side, let it stay at the edge of her

The mist shifted. The moonbow held for a moment
longer, then gently

Goodnight, Sunny.
Goodnight, moonbow.
Goodnight, little one.

Sweet dreams!

See you next time, little one ☐

Sonny's Cozy Quokka Bedtime Tales

By Jamie Wigg