

The rain had just stopped. Sunny stepped out from under the tree

Not half a rainbow or a faint stripe — a complete arc, red on the outside

The rainbow moved as she moved — it was everywhere and nowhere, painted in

She stood in the middle of the clearing and spread her paws wide. She

She sat down in the damp grass and watched until it slowly, gently faded.

Goodnight, Sunny.
Goodnight, rainbow.
Goodnight, little one.

Sweet dreams!

See you next time, little one ☐

Sonny's Cozy Quokka Bedtime Tales

By Jamie Wigg