

The puddles were everywhere. The afternoon rain had filled every low

There was a whole sky in there. A still, clear, perfect sky. Dark navy

She looked up, then down.

Sky. Puddle. Sky. Puddle.

Two skies. She walked

She crouched beside a particularly large puddle. In it she could

She sat down at the edge of the puddle and looked at her starry reflection

Goodnight, Sunny.
Goodnight, rain puddles.
Goodnight, little one.

Sweet dreams!

See you next time, little one ☐
