

The moon was soft and round tonight, resting just above the tree tops.

She stopped near an old gum tree. Something on the branch did not look

Sunny held her breath.

She did not want to startle him. She sat down

Then, slowly — oh so slowly — the frogmouth opened one golden eye.

Sunny smiled her softest smile. The frogmouth closed his eye again.

Then she curled up at the base of the tree and let her own eyes close.

Sweet dreams!

See you next time, little one ☐

Sonny's Cozy Quokka Bedtime Tales

By Jamie Wigg