

One afternoon, the wind came. Not a gentle breeze. Not a soft sigh

The branches swayed and creaked. A shower of bark fell softly to the ground

The whole world felt suddenly, completely, vigorously alive. He

Not a big laugh. Just a small, surprised, delighted laugh. The

It softened to a breeze.
The leaves settled. The grasses stilled. The bush

Cleared. Fresh. He found a sheltered spot beneath a low wattle bush and

Sweet dreams!

See you next time, little one ☐

Sonny's Cozy Quokka Bedtime Tales

By Jamie Wigg