

Just as the afternoon was turning golden, the cockatoos arrived. They

Sunny sat safely at a distance and watched.
There was a very large

They leaned toward each other and raised their yellow crests and made

Two were grooming each other carefully, crest to crest, very affectionate

It swayed on its branch.
Sunny understood. But then one of the adults

Slowly, the arguments softened. The crests went down. The noise became Sweet dreams!

See you next time, little one ☐

Sonny's Cozy Quokka Bedtime Tales

By Jamie Wigg